

I'm interested in:

Select a tool:

About EST

SAVE YOUR 20%

Consumer

About EST

Housing & buildings

Transport

Community

Learn about the Energy Saving Trust's work, get media information or find out about working for us

Who we are
About Energy Saving Trust
What we do
How can we help you
Working at The Energy Saving Trust
Events, training and schemes
Media Centre
Daily news
Press releases
Press Releases Archive
Guide to energy saving grants and offers
The Ampere Strikes Back
Links
Publications & documents
Contact us
Frequently asked questions
Green Barometer
Philip Sellwood's Blog
Our quality and sustainability policy

Use the options above to explore content and tools to navigate the About EST website.

Daily news

Insulating plaster scoops two awards

11 November 2005

Walltransform has been awarded two accolades for its energy-saving product Wall-Reform.

The thermally insulating plaster won a Green Apple Award for best practice in the environment on November 8th.

The company achieved further success that day, also winning an Orange Award for Bright Business at the National Business Awards.

Wall-Reform can be applied both internally and externally to buildings and helps to reduce energy consumption, thereby reducing carbon dioxide emissions.

"Both awards are a tremendous achievement and we are delighted to receive such recognition raising the profile of Wall-Reform," commented Walltransform's Glenn Melvin

According to Walltransform, the product was originally aimed at the seven million solid wall properties not being insulated because of the initial outlay costs.

Building professionals: Click here to find out more

© Adfero 2008

« More news

Related Links

"Hydrogen office" receives European funding

Eco-friendly housing development gets go-ahead

Managers urged to make the office green